Background of 22 September Events

On September 22, 2014, the 69th United Nation General Assembly will be held at the United Nations Headquarters in New York, during which Heads of State and Government and Senior Ministers from Member States will be attending.

In the morning of September 22, a special side event “Woman Leaders Forum,” will be held at UN Headquarters. Discussions will include how to: commit, create and implement the Global-Call-To-Action. The Conference is designed to increase awareness and to stimulate interest to support better women and girls’ financial health around the world, thus minimizing their marginalization and increasing their holistic well-being. The Conference will include a number of high-level keynote speakers, as well as two distinguished panels of experts that will focus on different elements of the theme: “Women and Girls Financial Health.”

The Global Sustainable Development Foundation (GSDF) will be launched at the Women Leaders Forum, with the announcement of thematic pillars. These initiatives will provide a platform for the public and private sectors, and non-profit partners, to join together in developing innovative, cross-sector solutions that will bring about lasting and actionable social and economic change to enhance the lives of women and girls, environment/water, energy and resources, and culture.

This event will also provide an open communication platform to all State Leaders, First Ladies, and other diplomatic representatives to share their comments and discussions, underscoring the vital role of women in achieving sustainable development. It will also provide an opportunity for governments to reaffirm their commitments to ensure women's equal rights, access and opportunities for participation and leadership in the economy, society and political decision-making. The First Ladies will utilize their influences to support women and girls' financial health around the world, and make the world a better place.

To cultivate the next generation talents, is one of the most important elements of Global Sustainable Development. In the afternoon of September 22, at the United Nations headquarter, the New York Academy of Sciences will announce to the world, in partnership with UNESCO and the International Telecommunications Union (ITU), the launch of the Global STEM Alliances, the world's first social network for gifted high school students – the potential leaders of our future who are at risk of leaving the sciences and engineering. Partnering with Cisco, the Academy is building a unique, invitation-only, website designed to encourage and inspire by enabling the world's most gifted and talented students to Interact and discuss science, technology, and math with counterparts in participating cities and countries around the world, and the opportunities to communicate with the global educator and experts, as well as the Nobel Laureates, to stimulate their potential and innovations.

After the launch of the Global STEM Alliances, a VIP reception will be held jointly by New York Academy of Sciences, ITU, UNESCO, Global Sustainable Development Foundation, and the Global Partnerships Forum, in order to provide a communicating platform to all the elite attendees.

The event will conclude with an exclusive Gala Dinner and concert at the United Nations Delegates Dining Room, hosted by the Global Sustainable Development Foundation, The Global Partnerships Forum, and The New York Academy of Sciences. The Gala Dinner will start off with a spectacular and unique performance, "Ode to Humanity," which will be performed by The Philadelphia Orchestra, with a special guest appearance by Mr. Lang Lang, United Nations Messenger of Peace.

The evening will consist of keynote remarks by a number of Heads of State and Government and will honour two leading international personalities:
