The young, social and hip crowd put on their finery and headed for the Seventh Regiment Armory on Park Avenue for The Winter Antiques Show's annual Young Collector's Night chaired by Emily Keno Kemp Glover, Laura L'esperance, Charles Rockefeller, Genevive Wheeler Brown and Michael J. O'Neal. The show benefitted the East Side House Settlement. After a few hours of intense perusing through the famed exhibitions, many headed downtown to the Sherry Netherland Hotel and down the magic red stair case into Doubles to unwind.

Friends mingled amid laughter and clinking glasses hitting the buffet where delicious platters of lobster crab cakes, Mediterranean grilled chicken, and the famous Doubles organic Burger accompanied by an assortment of cold plates, including eggplant caponate, country Greek salad, Thai beef salad, beet salad and guacamole. If this wasn't enough, many guests circled back around to enjoy the sumptuous dessert table, which was filled with cakes and fresh fruit. After dinner, guests kicked up their heels and danced the night away.
