Sheldon Landwehr, renown Columnist, Critic and Dining Maven, recognized for his hard-nosed reviews seen in the New York Post, Penthouse, our own Black Tie Magazine and his vast web-site ( WWW.Sheldonlandwehr.com ), commenting on the latest 'Put-on's and Right-on's.

The gala, hosted by friend, foodie Arthur Silverman, was commemorated March 3, 07. The event took place in historic, albeit remote little town of Inverness on Florida's West Coast, at Van der Valk, the communities most prestigious restaurant.

Tables were ablaze with candlelight and tropical floral arrangements audaciously orchestrated by Dale, of the local Flower Basket.

The festivities were dexterously conducted by Klaas Van Der Valk, aided by a kitchen in the accomplished hands of Executive Chef Remco van Asdonk, whose American/Continental menu always had its special attractions.

The star-filled night began on the terrace sipping cocktails and consuming trays of bacon wrapped shrimp, deep-fried brie gamished with sparkling cranberries, and pungent skewers of beef sate.

Moving into the fashionable, music-filled dining room, guests feasted on platters of paper-thin slices of beef capcio, heightened by slivers of almonds, creative crisp green salad lavishly crowned by delicious blackened salmon, followed by an intemzezzo of Champagne and sorbet. Then succulent cuts of Chateaubriand, and moist and flaky, grilled swordfish. Dinner was topped-off by a dazzling vanilla birthday cake festooned by vibrantly colored roses, served with a beverage of one's choice.

No one in attendance failed to appreciate the talent of Van de Valk. Guests affably departed with a bounce to their step and a glow from deep within.
