

Designer Joanna Mastroianni's Spring 2008 Collection

Photos by: Getty Images

Joanna and Carol Alt

Fashion designer, Joanna Mastroianni presented her Spring 2008 collection at the salon in the Bryant Park tents.

The Spring 2008 Collection displays intricate embroidery, detailed beading, geometric patterns, and architectural silhouettes. Flowing fabrics interplay with layers of transparency and light, as bold blacks and whites are accented with vibrant colors. The collection presents the drama and graphic modernity of 1920's art deco as interpreted by a tale of the dragonfly.

"The dragonfly is this small, yet powerful creature that is not only a testimony to exquisite beauty, but also a strength and the inevitable occurrences of new beginnings and changes," says the designer. "One day while working in my studio during one of New York's torrential downpours, a dragonfly flew through an open window and rested upon my hand. At that moment, I was enamored with its mystical and spiritual symbolism which set the mood of my Spring 2008 collection."

Joanna Mastroianni's unique designs and accessories have attracted Hollywood's elite from the likes of Eva Longoria, Halle Berry, Beyonce, Kelly Rowland, Sharon Stone, Padma Lakshmi, Angela Bassett, Natasha Richardson, Susan Lucci, Sela Ward, Jane Seymour, Christina Ricci, Famke Janssen and Carol Alt.

For more information please visit:
www.joannamastroianni.com

