Armory Art Center's Mad Hatter's Tea Party

Hats were everywhere at the Armory Art Center's Mad Hatter's Tea Party, held at Club Colette. Tea partiers were invited to wear their most stylish hats and bid on handmade teapots by Armory artists as well as artists from around the country. Luncheon guests tipped their hats to the Armory Art Center's Artist-in-Residence program as proceeds were earmarked to support this unique programming for the West Palm Beach based arts school and exhibition center.

"The Artist-in-Residence program is a unique and very vital offering at the Armory," said co-chairman, Annie Falk, who also serves on the board of directors of the Armory Art Center. "One year of residency will be offered to five artists this coming year. These artists will spend the year teaching Armory students and learning from Armory faculty-all while creating new works of art for their evolving portfolios.
